

SUBSCRIPTION

Why subscribe?

Each year, AFCEN increases the number of publication references (codes, PTANs and guides). In addition, AFCEN is abandoning the principle of including addenda and moving towards annual issues of its main codes. In our desire to provide the best service to our customers, AFCEN is promoting subscriptions that guarantee access to the most up-to-date versions of the codes as soon as they are released and prevent technical teams from encountering moments when they cannot access the collections.

Subscription period

The subscription lasts for one year. All customers have access to their on-line library for 12 months from the date the download keys are delivered by email.

The publications can be downloaded in PDF format and saved on the user's computer. → The PDF files downloaded by the user can be accessed for an unlimited period (after the end of the subscription).

Subscription content

The subscription includes the available versions of the code in both languages (French and English) as well as the technical publications associated with the code. You can consult the "files included" tab in the Code description to obtain details on the publications included in the subscription.

The library is automatically updated as soon as new publications are published during the subscription period. The subscription therefore guarantees access to the most up-to-date versions of the codes as soon as they are released.

Publication format

The publications are accessed via the on-line library on afcen.com in the form of a PDF file to be downloaded.

An internet connection is required to download the publication, but once downloaded, the PDF can be saved on the user's computer and reopened by the user off-line. The PDF file can be printed.

Copyright/individual license

The digital publication is for personal, individual use. When downloading the publication, the PDF is customized on each page with the name of the company and the user who downloaded it (watermark and copyright).

It is strictly prohibited to upload the PDF to a network, reproduce it, or distribute it to third parties in any form, even partially, without formal consent from AFCEN.
